Annaballe M. Ednavels 342600 Submission (patral) on the Call,
Proposed Contenbury Land and Water

Regimal Plan.

The 2012 E Can Act gave the E Can commissioners special powers, by passed the Resource Management Act (RMA), and did a (1)local rewriting of how Water Conservation Orders WCOs) apply here in Canterbury The Democracy on Hold" article by John McCrone in The Press of Saturday, September 29, 2012, explains What The ECan commissioners have done and what they apparently intend to do. It also includes some explanations of why the promised return of democracy has not eventuated. One of these explanations is not among the ones given by the commissioners. It has to do with the afterations they have made to the Water Conservation Orders. WCOS were weakened by replacing their preservation purpose with instead a sustainable-management purpose that requires them to look to the principles of the Canterbury Water Management Strategy. In John McCronès article he quotes Eugenie Sage, Green MP and former ECan councillor "Sage says the words matter because they enshine a right to exploit WCD-protected rivers such as the Rakaia. The game shifts to reduced degree of protection and the push for much intensified agricultural production.

The usual rights of appeal to the Envisonment Court have been suspended, so that whatever the commissioners decide is final. Objectors cannot dispute principles only argue technicalities in the Hight Court." " The powers (taken by the commissioners) snuffed out much of the potential for debate on factual issues, like what are the appropriate nutrient levels; is it right to have only X mothes of inpartan buffer, what is the substantive basis for the stock-access rules. An these sorts of issues have been struck out of The process" (unlike elsewhere in New Leadand). Under the Woster Conservation Orders as They were before the commissioners aftered them, Canterburgs rivers, takes and groundwater reserves had the special status of Notional Parks and the Environment Court was the forum in which to attempt to defend these precious resources from degradation. Interested parties could oppose allocation and/or contamination, or at least plead for a reduced effect. Cankerbury's rivers lakes and groundwater resources need to be given back their form WO protection, and this needs to happen before the implementation of the commissioness grand plans. with to raise, but I have not enough the
