The management of unplanned fires by accident or poor management should be put out within 3 days and not be allowed to burn for 2 months with respect to the environment and the surrounding affected population Any business that has the potential to do this should be managed in a way so this cant happen ie a composting operation the row spacing should be wide enough apart so if a fire does occur the fire cant spread to other or all rows to engulf the whole operation and therefore cause an environmental disaster, ecan may have to work with other agencies to achieve this.

Ecan must mitigate and minimise risk of smoke on any population this should be put in place before a fire start by identifying any potential hazzards
