Reasons comment:

It seems unbelievable that a dairy company should be allowed to put its "waste" into the ocean already under stress from human created acidification, thermal and plastic modification. The "waste" is actually a resource that the dairy company needs to research how to recover and use on land....or not create in the first place. If the dairy company can only survive economically by polluting receiving waters , then it is an uneconomic business which needs a re-think.

Consent comment:

not grant any of the resourced consents. Require the dairy company to find alternative processes which do not harm receiving waters, air or land.
