Reasons comment:

This land, Aotearoa/New Zealand, is very precious. All life lives within and depends upon the natural world. We must place the restoration and protection of nature as the most important consideration in our decisions. We need to restore/rewild lands to their natural state as much as we can and we need to stop extractive, abusive and polluting activities on land, water and air. This area includes habitat where the critically endangered Canterbury mud-fish can live. We have already destroyed much of the habitat of these endemic creatures. Streams and waterways are especially threatened in Canterbury due to human endeavors. Further to the destruction these consents would facilitate, the coal is safer under the ground. Digging coal up and burning it needs to stop. In this country we are creating too much GHG. We need to put more focus on acting responsibly.
