Reasons comment:

Overall the effects of the current and proposed mining and mining operations at the CCM are considered to be appropriately controlled and minor. Coal mining on the site has been ongoing over more than 120 years with very limited impact. It was the reason that Glantunnel and Coalgate were originally settled. Mitigation measures in place have been developed over the last 5 years of mining operations by the applicant at the mine site. The mitigation measures have been refined and documented as part of annual reporting that is required under the suite of consent conditions that currently apply to the activities undertaken at CCM, and are supported by the commitment of BCL, and their experience operating coal mines throughout New Zealand.
