Reasons comment:

1 It is a step backwards when progress on the climate crisis is critical. 2 20-25 years cited in the document clearly are getting too close to the original 2050 deadline for reduction in emissions. We can get ahead of that by this amount by not allowing it to happen. 3 This is a major polluter just demanding business as usual, with no efforts to curb the use of coal.

Consent comment:

Coal mining in NZ for heating purposes is no longer a healthy option, and all coal mining beyond coking coal for industry in NZ should be curtailed forthwith.
