Reasons comment:

Mining of natural resource can impact significantly on social and economic environment. If managed well, mining operations can balance business concerns with local community and environmental concerns to bring a region many benefits. Sustainable mine management can bring many short and long term benefits to a region. Money into a local economy directly through local employment opportunities, staff wages and contracts with local businesses and contractors, help develop communities through funding assistance to schools, sports teams, community events and other local organizations and initiatives. Due to covid 19 pandemic letting operations to continue will benefit the region greatly
