Reasons comment:

Global warming and climate change is a reality and we must act accordingly to tackle the crisis and lower our emissions. Discharge of raw, partially or fully industrial water is a threat to our water ways, flora, fauna and people 's health. Cleaning streams and rivers, protecting aquifers from nitrates and pollutants, renewable energies should be the focus. We cannot afford to go backwards anymore and it is unacceptable that a country like new Zealand is still incredibly behind in term of sustainability and clean innovation. A strong economy starts with a healthy and well protected environment and community. Polluting our communities, land and waters will result in poorer economy, health hazards and failure

Yours sincerely Renan Cataliotti
