Air Quality, Transport and Urban Development portfolio comments:

Given the information known regarding the effect quarry dust is having on people in the area, the stress this is causing residents and communities, the publicly stated (by ECan) inefficiencies of compliance, monitoring, and lack of staff, and the impact this is having, we are very surprised that there is no mention of this in the documentation.

The TRA would like to see monitors purchased by ECan and monitored independently so that communities know that the air they are breathing is safe. This means that there are no 'muddy waters' with companies monitoring their own dust monitors. This would be beneficial to communities involved. In addition, we believe that when complaints are made staff need to be made available to follow these up - it is not good enough to say that "no staff are available"

We believe that this fits with the operating principles of ECan such as "listening to the people to serve the communities" and ensuring that "air quality improves and does not impact on the wellbeing of our communities" (ECAN consultation documentation).
