It would be good to put more of an emphasis on reducing investment in things which contribute to climate change (such as roads, etc), as well as reducing emissions wherever possible.

Air Quality, Transport and Urban Development portfolio comments:

I think that reducing the emissions of our public transport is very good. However, there should be more incentives to get people out of cars and using public transport; such as free busses, and making our city more bike/pedestrian friendly. Even making busses free for students would be a good start.
